Born and raised in Sioux Falls, Vince joined Woods Fuller law firm in 2004, creating a business-centric practice consisting of many small and medium sized businesses, and focusing on their needs. He represents a variety of clients, including dentists, doctors, and other professionals, construction companies, developers, banks, farmers, and entrepreneurs. His practice areas of expertise include:

Professional Practice - Assisting many dentists, doctors, and other professionals in practice and asset purchases, regulatory compliance, employment law, and a myriad of other issues associated with professional practices.

Real Estate - Handling real estate transactions and development, mineral rights, and leases. He has litigated lawsuits to enforce purchase agreements, commence foreclosures, landlord rights, and handle disputes between owners.

Corporate/LLC - Advising a variety of business entities, including non-profit organizations and privately held companies through formation, maintenance, succession planning, and mergers and acquisitions, as well as guiding clients through general business needs such as contracts, and collections law. He currently serves as a chair of the firm's Business and Corporate Transactions practice group.

Creditor Rights - Representing banks, agricultural companies, and property owners in matters including collection actions, foreclosures, and other creditor issues.

Community service is important to Vince, and he has volunteered on or for the boards of numerous local non-profits. He served six years on the board of the Sioux Falls Youth Hockey Association, where he remains active and coaches extensively and serves on the board of a local homeless shelter. Outside of his volunteer and work commitments, he enjoys spending time with his family, hunting, fishing, athletics, and the outdoors.
